About Rosie Hunter...

For as long as I can remember I have been passionate about interior design. There is nothing more satisfying than seeing what was once an average room transform into a completely inspirational setting.

In 1995 I decided to turn my love for interiors – and curtains in particular – into a career by launching 'Curtains by Rosie Hunter'.

From a small curtain-making business that has evolved into one of the region's best-known curtains and interior companies, covering the whole of East Anglia and London. I now work with an incredibly creative and talented team of people who share my own enthusiasm for dressing windows.

We aim to provide the customer with an exclusive and efficient service, committed to sourcing inspirational fabrics and ideas from around the world, commissioning the company's own unique lines.

You can be assured that you will receive an exceptional service.
